GOLDEN WEDDING AND BIRTHDAY HAPPEN ON SAME DATE--SEPT. 11

Joseph Warren Morgan; born September 11th, 1850--still alive, hale and hearty, capable of good joke and eating three square meals a day without fooling away his time worrying about rheumatism, gout, neuralgia, or any of the other ailments that cause so many people to lose much of their joys of living, and for all these blessings "Uncle" Warren is duly thankful and substantially appreciative.

"Uncle" Warren just happened to blow into the Herald office a day or two ago. He wanted to get acquainted and shake hands. He was feeling particularly good because he had just celebrated his birthday and had marked another notch on the old milestone, and he looked good for another couple of decades. Life has been kind to him in more ways than one, and he wants his friends to know that he is conscious of his earthly blessings. He has just passed his seventy-second year, has never been sick except when he had a touch of "flu" and an attack of measles, and he has had ten children, all of whom are living. "Uncle" Warren says that in all of his life he hasn't taken a handful of medicine, and he doesn't intend to take up the practice while traveling on the sunset road--at least not so long as a clear conscience, laughter and sunshine are to be had for nothing.

Mr. Morgan is an old resident of Jackson county. He was reared in the Ninth civil district on Roaring river, and is a son of A. H. Morgan, Cumberland Presbyterian minister. Today he owns the farm and homeplace upon which he was born, but owns, in addition, another farm about a mile from the former, and here he lived and carried on the occupation of a substantial and successful farmer until three years ago, at which time he moved to Cookeville. With the exception of the time he has been in Cookeville, and nine years spent in Overton county, he has resided on Roaring river all of his life, and to the fact that he has led an out-of-doors existence is perhaps attributable his splendidly preserved body.

However, there usually comes a time when the call from across the border sounds loudly in the ear of growing youth, and "Uncle" Warren was no exception to this rule. He attended a writing class at Poplar Springs, a rural community in Overton county near Hilham, and there in the fall of 1871 met Miss Louise S. Masters, pretty daughter of Mr. and Mrs. M. B. Masters of the third district. She was five years his junior, but fifty years ago young people had not acquired the habit of gauging devotion by modern rules, and the two were married the following year. "Uncle" Warren says that the writing school at Poplar Springs was conducted by S. T. Stone, who was reared within two or three miles of Cookeville. The marriage ceremony was performed by Rev. Robert L. Mitchell, a Methodist minister of Hilham, at the home of the bride's parents and the wedding occurred on the twenty-second birthday of the groom. Not only was last Monday "Uncle" Warren's

Mrs. V. B. Brooks Accident-ly Shot by 12-year old Son

Mrs. V. B. Brooks, of this place, was very painfully, but not seriously wounded, last Thursday afternoon. When her 12 year old son, Cordell, accidentally discharged a 22 calibre rifle. The ball struck Mrs. Brooks on the right side of her head, about three inches above the ear, and ranged downward about three inches, lodging under the scalp. At the time of the accident, Mrs. Brooks was standing in the back yard feeling her chickens. The boy was in an upstairs room fooling with the gun, and not knowing it was loaded, snapped it out the window, with the above results.

Dr. Gaw was immediately summoned and cut the bullet out, which consumed about thirty minutes time, outside of occasional head pains, Mrs. Brooks is getting along nicely, and the wound is causing little trouble.

FIRST OIL WELL WAS DRILLED 63 YEARS AGO--275,000 WELLS

The first oil well in this county was brought in 63 years ago by Col. Edwin L. Drake, near Titusville, Pa. It was only 69 feet deep, but it marked the beginning of an epoch, the importance of which has only begun to be realized.

The demand for oil created by the development of the internal combustion engine has so stimulated the growth of the industry that there are today, according to estimates by the American Petroleum Institute, about 275,000 producing wells in this country.

Production has increased from the negligible quantity obtained in 1859 from Col. Drake's little well, to an output last year of 469,639,000 barrels in this country alone.

TELL THEM AGAIN.

A story is told of an Irish lawyer, who, being asked how he always managed to get a decision from a jury, replied, "I make 'em understand! First I tell 'em what I'm going to tell 'em; then I tell 'em; and then over and over I tell 'em what I told 'em."

In the foregoing lies one of the greatest elements for success in advertising. Don't use the intermittent type of publicity, wherein an advertiser "tells 'em what he is going to tell 'em," and then doesn't follow up his lead with conscientious, continuous telling. The way to advertise is the method of the Irish lawyer--first "tell 'em what you are going to tell 'em;" then "tell 'em;" and then many times tell 'em what you told 'em."

Mr. and Mrs. Luther Strong and two children, Georgia and Charlie, of Drumright, Okla., after a pleasant visit with their parents, Mr. and Mrs. A. F. Hix and Mr. and Mrs. Steve Strong of R-2, returned home Wednesday. Mr. Strong is pumping for the Perry Oil and Gas Company, and has missed only two days work with this Company in three years.
